Regional Tasmania - Australia's most affordable state for a Government education

Regional Tasmania is Australia's most affordable state for a Government education, according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index (developed in partnership with Monash University) estimates the total cost of a Government education in regional Tasmania will be $40,489 over a 13 period for a child starting school in 2019.

This is 30.2 per cent below the national average ($57,994) and considerably more affordable than regional New South Wales ($73,808), regional Queensland ($65,410) and regional Western Australia ($53,094).

School fees ($324) make up a small fraction of the estimated total cost of a Government education each year in regional Tasmania, with sports equipment ($334), devices ($426) and external tuition ($474) all costing parents more.

ASG's research also revealed a Catholic education in regional Tasmania ($86,694) is the most affordable in the country, 21.2 per cent below the national average ($109,877) and $26,517 cheaper than regional Queensland, home of Australia's most expensive regional Catholic education.

School fees ($2,564) are easily the most expensive component of a Catholic education in regional Tasmania, well ahead of other annual expenses including uniforms ($356), camps ($488), devices ($488) and transport ($544).

The ASG Planning for Education Index discovered similar results for parents considering an Independent education for their son or daughter, with the estimated total cost of an Independent education in regional Tasmania ($131,673), 34.6 per cent below the national average ($201,210).

The Index discovered the estimated total cost of an Independent education in regional Tasmania is $116,870 cheaper than regional Victoria ($248,543), home of Australia's most expensive regional Independent education.

School fees are the most expensive part of an Independent education in regional Tasmania, costing parents approximately $5,138 per child per year, well ahead of uniforms ($508), devices ($538) and external tuition ($630).

The Index is based on data sourced from a survey of 2,300 members on ancillary costs conducted by ASG and public information on school fees – The Good Schools Guide and the My School Website. The data was consolidated and analysed by Monash University.

ASG CEO Ross Higgins said irrespective of Australia's high or low inflationary environment, the cost of education has risen at more than double the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Education costs, including tuition costs, uniforms, transport and devices are demanding a far greater share of the family budget than in the past," Mr Higgins said.

"More than ever, the costs associated with education are placing more of a burden on Australian families, who are already challenged by the rising cost of living.

"With less discretionary money to spend, it's going to be very hard to pay for education, which means parents who have saved will be in a better position in the long run.

"ASG advocates parents use a disciplined approach to saving by putting in place a dedicated savings plan, so they can financially afford to meet their children's educational goals and aspirations.

"ASG has also developed a Cost Calculator tool which may assist you looking at this data as it applies to your circumstances."

Definitions

Schools can be differentiated by their affiliation, ownership and management, and are presented as two broad categories:

- Government schools are owned and managed by State and Territory governments;
- Non-Government schools (including Catholic or Independent schools) that are owned and managed by non-government establishments. These schools have associations with religious (faith based) or secular bodies (philosophical beliefs), or are entirely independent and have values maintained by the school.
