The cost of educating a child in regional Queensland Most expensive region for systemic education

Regional Queensland is the most expensive region in Australia to educate a child in a systemic¹ school according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index discovers for a child born in 2016 the forecast cost of a systemic education in regional Queensland is $193,262, 12 per cent above the national regional average ($172,331).

The results of the survey are slightly better for parents who plan to send their children to regional Queensland government or private schools, with both systems slightly below the national regional average.

The forecast cost of a government education in regional Queensland is $50,478, $442 less than the national regional average ($50,920), but third only to regional Victoria ($53,245) and regional New South Wales ($52,598) as Australia's most expensive regions.

The estimated cost of a private education in regional Queensland is $326,762, $2,219 less than the national regional average ($328,981), but significantly more expensive when compared to regional Western Australia ($308,323) and regional South Australia ($287,128).

The ASG Planning for Education Index also forecasts preschool or kindergarten in regional Queensland will cost parents between $2,774 and $8,330 depending on the school type.

Based on more than 12,500 responses, the index measures a range of variables including school fees, transport, uniforms, computers, school excursions and sporting trips to determine the cost of education.

Interestingly, the cost of certain variables measured as part of the ASG Planning for Education Index have not increased over the past year. For example, the costs for computers and transport costs, including the price of fuel, have declined compared to last year, while the cost of books has remained stable.

ASG member and mother of three, Yvonne Turnbull says she withdrew her son Sean (year 11) from a Catholic school after 10 years of schooling.

"It probably wasn't the right school for him, he wasn't engaged so his attendance was dropping and as a single parent it was very, very expensive. But even in a public school I'm paying $600 a term for tutoring, so the costs still add up.

¹ A systemic education includes religious schools e.g. Catholic, Anglican, Uniting Church, Buddhist, Islamic or Hindu

"I'm putting Sean's ASG benefit aside in savings, so when Sean wants to do further study, he's got that money there. It really helped my daughter to meet her basic living costs when she moved to Canberra to study at ANU. We've got a couple of unis in Cairns that are on par with the best institutions, but then you live away from home, that is when the extra costs kick in, such as paying for board and buying all her food."

ASG CEO John Velegrinis says the cost of education continued to rise at more than twice the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Regardless of whether you send your children to a government, systemic or private school, the costs of that education will clearly increase which is why we advocate that parents start planning for education as early as possible, even from the moment their child is born.

"We're very fortunate in Australia to have a variety of excellent government, systemic and private schools. If you have two or three children, the cost of a private education in regional Queensland could be higher than the purchase price of the family home. We advocate parents use a disciplined approach by putting a little bit away each week so they financially can afford their children's educational goals and aspirations."

Independent statistician and Managing Director of foreseexchange Charlie Nelson says the current economic climate is having an effect on education.

"A sudden increase in education costs would certainly be painful in the current low income growth environment.

"With school fees increasing faster than incomes, it has never been more important for parents to financially plan for their child's future as early as possible."

A very small number of responses were received from the Northern Territory in the most recent survey. As such, the provision of cost estimates for the Northern Territory in isolation would be highly unreliable and therefore have not been included. It is recommended that those in the Northern Territory refer to the national figures or the figures for adjoining states as a basis for planning.

Editor's notes

ASG conducts the Planning for Education Index annually, asking parents to estimate education costs, which cover preschool, primary and secondary schools in Australia. This survey includes 12,500 responses relating to the number of responses acquired from a combination of the 2013 and 2015 surveys. Data from both surveys has been combined to increase the sample size and precision of the estimates. The 2015 estimates reported are an average of the data acquired in the 2015 survey and the 2013 data, adjusted for inflation using known ABS CPI increases.

ASG is a member owned organisation, helping to create educational opportunities for children. ASG has been helping families and their children for more than 40 years. During this time, more than 520,000 children have been enrolled with ASG and more than $2.3 billion in education benefits and scholarship payments returned to members.
