Australia's most affordable city for government or systemic education - HOBART

Hobart is the most affordable city in Australia to educate a child at government and systemic<sup>1</sup> schools according to exclusive research released today.

The ASG Planning for Education Index discovered for a child born in 2017 the forecast cost of a government education in Hobart is $45,832<sup>2</sup>, 33 per cent or $22,781 less than the national metropolitan average ($68,613). The Tasmanian capital is well below Australia's most expensive cities for a government education, Melbourne ($77,371), Sydney ($75,080) and Brisbane ($60,135).

The survey also revealed the estimated cost of a systemic education in Hobart is $201,212, $38,460 below the national metropolitan average ($239,672) and considerably more affordable when compared to Sydney ($250,862), Adelaide ($246,786) and Brisbane ($243,964).

The research also discovered the forecast cost of a private education in Hobart for a child born in 2017 is $433,990, 11 per cent or $53,103 less than the national metropolitan average ($487,093).

However, the forecast cost of a private education in the Apple Isles' capital is considerably more expensive than Perth ($407,627), Adelaide ($377,131) and Brisbane ($372,037).

The ASG Planning for Education Index also forecasts preschool or kindergarten in Australia could cost parents between $2818 and $8506 depending on the school type.

Based on more than 12,500 responses, the index calculates a range of variables including school fees, transport, uniforms, computers, school excursions and sporting trips to determine the cost of education.

School fees, the cost of extracurricular activities including excursions and uniforms have all risen in the past year, however computers and transport costs have fallen when compared to 2016.

Heath Nichols' three children, Lachlan (year 7), Xavier (year 6) and Stella (year 3) attend a Catholic school in Hobart and says through making ASG contributions, providing for their high school education is now more affordable.

"I was raised to believe that education is very important to get anywhere and we want to give our kids the best chance possible.

We like the Catholic ethos and values they teach and how they run their schools. Ninety per cent of our money gets poured into uniforms, text books, extra-curricular activities, school fees and ASG contributions. As the monthly contributions are automatic drawings, we don't miss the money and we know it's going to a good, long-term plan."

The research also discovered that the estimated cost of a private education has skyrocketed by 64 per cent in the past decade across metropolitan Australia. For a child born in 2017 the forecast cost of a private education across metropolitan Australia is $487,093, a jump of $190,820 compared to a child born in 2007 ($296,273).

The estimated cost of a systemic education has also soared by 57 per cent over the same period to $239,672, while the estimated cost of a government education has climbed 25 per cent over the decade to $68,613.

ASG CEO John Velegrinis says the cost of education has risen at two and a half times the rate of inflation over the past decade.

"Our research predicts the cost of education will increase, irrespective of whether you send your child to a government, systemic or private school.

The estimated cost of a government education across metropolitan Australia has jumped $13,587 in the past decade. That is why we encourage parents to start planning for education as early as possible, even from the moment their child is born."

Mr Velegrinis says Australians are fortunate to have excellent government, systemic and private schools to choose from, but costs can spiral out of control.

"If you have three children, the cost of educating them in Hobart's private education system could top $1.3 million. That's significantly more than the purchase price of the average family home.

We advocate parents use a disciplined approach by putting a little bit away each week so they financially can afford to meet their children's educational goals and aspirations."

Independent statistician and Managing Director of foreseexchange Charlie Nelson says a range of economic factors influence the cost of education.

"Employment growth, hourly wages and inflation all impact the cost of living, which puts extra strain on the family budget.

With school fees likely to rise further, it has never been more important for parents to financially plan for their child's future."

A very small number of responses were received from the Northern Territory in the most recent survey. As such, the provision of cost estimates for the Northern Territory in isolation would be highly unreliable and therefore have not been included. It is recommended that those in the Northern Territory refer to the national figures or the figures for adjoining states as a basis for planning. These figures are the average estimated costs and represent the highest amount parents and families could expect to pay. ASG cannot guarantee that they will represent the actual costs of education for a particular child.

Editor's notes

ASG conducts the ASG Planning for Education Index annually, asking parents to estimate education costs, which cover preschool, primary and secondary schools in Australia. Cost estimates are based on 12,500 responses collected by ASG.

To help with the costs of education, ASG Funding Solutions is an annual education costs payment service that takes the financial pressure off parents, families and guardians and allows you to pay for your child's school fees, uniforms, books and other education items in manageable instalments over the year.

*ASG is a member owned organisation, helping to create educational opportunities for children. ASG has been helping families and their children for more than 40 years. During this time, more than 530,000 children have been enrolled with ASG and more than $2.5 billion in education benefits and scholarship payments returned to members.
