

2016 ASG National Excellence in Teaching Awards

State and Territory Award Recipient

Julie-Ann Goldman

Sheldon College
Sheldon, Queensland

Julie-Ann demonstrates excellence in the field of early childhood education by encouraging her students to be self-directed learners, creative problems solvers and effective communicators. She ensures that her students develop a sound understanding of the core literacies while developing their self-esteem and their ability to collaborate with others.

Her creativity is evident in the visual design and layout of her ever-evolving classroom environment, which reflects the needs and interests of her students. The atmosphere within her classroom is warm and positive, which enables the children to feel safe to take risks with their learning.

Julie-Ann is inspired to instil a lifelong love of learning in her students, and feels privileged to share in their emerging understanding of their world. She is committed to helping her students to hypothesise and explore, through hands-on, concrete learning experiences.

With a classroom emphasis on the importance of everyone's success being unique, Julie-Ann also happily shares her inspiration and direction with other staff and feels fortunate to teach in a school that fosters a positive learning culture among teachers.
