

2016 ASG National Excellence in Teaching Awards

State and Territory Award Recipient

Frances McMullen

Cavendish Road State High School
Holland Park, Queensland

Frances is a much-loved teacher, renowned for the rapport she has with her students, her availability and willingness to help and her determination to see her students succeed.

Her teaching style is designed to ensure Mathematics remains interesting, and students remain engaged. She makes herself available to her students, via email, day, night and weekends and provides regular one on one feedback, while also offering parents open lines of communication about their child's progress.

Frances utilises an electronic whiteboard in her lessons and uploads saved lesson notes to a class webpage so students can catch up on missed lessons and refer back to teachings when needed. She believes the use of webpage helps support students who learn in different ways or at a different pace, helping them to be more present during lessons.

Frances is committed to helping students remain engaged in school, particularly in senior years when other life pressures mount. She also supports the welfare curriculum at the school and provides support for students in her role as a mentor.
