

Dr Phillip Moulds

The Rockhampton Grammar School, QLD

Phillips is guided by the principle that 'you cannot not influence'. He is driven by the thought that you have an influence not only on how you are perceived by others, but on what you stand for, what is permissible and what you support within your school.

In his quest to support teachers, who in turn can help students meet their individual education and learning goals, Phillip has been instrumental in introducing a 'learning at work' initiative in his school that gives every teacher the opportunity to pursue a Masters programme in partnership with Griffith University at no extra cost.

In future, he would like to explore the advantages and disadvantages of the use of technology in schools and how to best maximise the benefits and minimise the costs. Phillip is also interested in future international and global education and exploring how this can prepare students for the future.

He has drafted a blueprint for the establishment of the RGS Leadership Institute in 2019 that will provide leadership development opportunities for students, staff, parents, alumni and other members of the school community.

Phillips has been described as “a leader who thinks and acts strategically with a style that is inclusive and respectful of staff, while at the same time being decision-focused and goal-oriented.”
