Love of arts earns Timaru educator regional award

An outstanding teacher from Timaru who has connected with her school community will be honoured with an ASG National Excellence in Teaching Award (ASG NEiTA).

Glenys Parry from Craighead Diocesan School is one of 18 regional recipients to be awarded, selected from almost 200 community nominations throughout New Zealand.

Now in its 21st year, ASG NEiTA gives parents, grandparents, school boards and councils and committees of management the opportunity to formally thank and recognise outstanding and dedicated teachers, who are passionate about driving a world class education system and encouraging students to reach their full potential.

As an art teacher, Ms Parry sees young people develop through their creativity, encouraging her students to draw from their personal background and cultural heritage. The sculpture, photography and painting of her students have toured New Zealand in Top Art, and many students have achieved scholarships.

ASG NEiTA Chief Executive Officer, John Velegrinis says educators like Ms Parry recognise that 'it takes a village to raise a child,' which is testament to their dedication and the impact they have on the lives of those they serve in local communities.

"In many respects, teaching is about giving, not only to children and students but to their families and the community networks around them. Some of the ASG NEiTA recipients come from very small towns and do represent the heartbeat of these communities.

"These teachers have an enormous responsibility in shaping and guiding these young people as well as supporting the educational aspirations families have for their children. Their teaching stretches beyond the core curriculum and standardised testing, and they also help children develop the social skills they need to develop into successful adults. Ensuring children have a well-rounded education is something our ASG NEiTA recipients are absolutely passionate about. This passion is welcomed by families as they want teachers to play a greater role in developing their children's life skills, which was one of the key findings in the latest ASG Parents Report Card."

The awards are classed into early childhood, primary and secondary categories.

ASG NEiTA chairman, Allen Blewitt says the awards highlight a long history of positive relationships being built between teachers and their communities.

"These teachers are also mentors and the influence they have on young people is remarkable as they learn to appreciate the value of lifelong learning as they navigate their life journeys. So, ASG NEiTA is one of the only channels where the community gets to express their sincere gratitude through nominating an inspirational teacher, educator, principal or centre director."

Auckland had seven ASG NEiTA recipients, followed by five in Christchurch and one each for Hawke's Bay, Palmerston North, Rotorua, Invercargill and Maungaturoto.

ASG NEiTA will announce the national award recipients in February 2018. The six national recipients will receive professional development grants.
